GENERAL INFORMATION

Statement of Purpose. Families in Society (FIS), focuses on the art, science, and practice of social work and provides a trusted forum to explore and share ideas and concepts in social services. A core publication in social work scholarship, FIS reflects the broad array of issues, conditions, and problems that apply to individuals, families, communities, and society. Readers are informed of significant trends and techniques through articles on research and theory, direct-practice issues, and the delivery and management of services.

History. Now in its 90th year, FIS is the oldest and one of the most respected journals in North America on social work and related human services. Founded by social casework pioneer Mary Richmond in 1920, the journal has had four titles: The Family (1920-1946), The Journal of Social Casework (1947-1949), Social Casework (1950-1989), and Families in Society (1990 to present).

Readership. Approximately 20,000-plus based on a pass-a-long average of at least seven readers per issue. More than 75% of the circulation comes from institutions, including service agencies and educational libraries. Almost 20% of the paid subscriptions are from international sources with readers in all corners of the globe. The journal has wide-ranging content and appeals to practitioners, educators, and allied professionals.

Online Services and Content. The official Web site for FIS is FamiliesInSociety.org. The site includes online ordering, author guidelines, copyright and permission information, publisher resources, advertising rate card, and general information. Online subscribers have access to archives of over 3,500 articles, essays, editorials, and book reviews published since 1980.

Subscriptions. Institution, Nonprofit Agency, and Individual subscriptions for United States, Canada, and international readers are available in bundled print/online and online-only for one, two, and three year terms. Online access is administered via IP address registration or password. U.S. rates for 1-year bundled print/online: Institution $315; Nonprofit Agency $286; Individual $67. Canada rates: add $30/year. International rates: add $60/year. Additional rates available: FamiliesInSociety.org/Subscriptions.asp. Back volumes add 20% above current rates. All rates are in U.S. funds.

Claims. Subscriber requests for replacement of copies must arrive within 3 months (U.S. and Canada) or 6 months (international) of publication. Claims must be made via e-mail: Claims@FamiliesInSociety.org.

Abstracts and Indices. Abstracts and articles from 1980 to present are available at FamiliesInSociety.org. FIS is abstracted and indexed in: Alcohol and Alcohol Science Problems Database (ETOH), Book Review Index, Chicago Psychoanalytic Literature Index, Current Contents, Expanded Academic Index, Hospital Literature Index, Inventory of Marriage and Family Literature, Psychological Abstracts, PsychINFO, Psychiatric Rehabilitation, Sage Family Studies Abstracts, Social Science Citation Index, Social Sciences Index, Social Work Abstracts, and CSA/Sociological Abstracts.
